DEMOCRATIC CITY CONVENTION

A Strong Ticket Named

Harmony and Enthusiasm Mark the Proceedings.

The first Democratic convention ever held in Anadarko convened in Miller's Hall yesterday afternoon at two o'clock and nominated a full city ticket, composed of clean, able and courageous Democrats, a ticket that should secure the vote and hearty support of every Democrat in Anadarko, and one that will, by reason of its personnel, draw many Republicans who are broad enough to rise above party and vote for the best men.

The convention first convened at ten in the morning and elected W. W. Price for temporary chairman and S. B. Sturgis secretary, after which it adjourned to meet at two o'clock p. m.

At the afternoon session, the hall was seated with chairs, and large yellow placards, designating the different wards, were displayed about the hall. As fast as delegates arrived, they were called to the front and had a white ribbon badge pinned on them. These were delegate badges and were the compliments of the ANADARKO DEMOCRAT. A large American flag was draped over the chairman's stand.

At promptly two-thirty o'clock, Mr. Shaw, as chairman of the city central committee, called the convention to order, and after stating the purposes of the assembly, called W. W. Price to the chair. Mr. Price proceeded to appoint the following committees: On credentials, Ernest Taylor, D. Turner, M. E. Whitson; on resolutions and platform, P. P. Shaw, Randall Livesay, Carl Glitch; on order of business, J. T. Blackmore, Ivan Matheny, W. Hess; on permanent organization, I. H. Kerr, H. B. Mitchell, A. Craig.

While the committees were out preparing their reports, C. V. Limb of Kentucky addressed the delegates. His speech teemed with brilliant expressions good advice and was warmly received by the delegates. When the committee on permanent organization reported in favor of making the temporary officers the permanent officers, the convention by its unanimous indorsement of Price was called on for a speech. He responded with an address capturing the convention and established his reputation for all to come as one of our Democratic orators and wheel-horses. His remarks were cheered to the echo. Reports of the committees on credentials and order of business were read and approved and then Shaw read the platform as it framed by the committee. It was as follows:

We, the Democrats of the city of Anadarko, in convention assembled, reaffirm our allegiance to the principles of Democracy as given by Thomas Jefferson and as set forth in our national platform.

We pledge our loyalty and aid support to the upbuilding of Anadarko, to the end that it may become the Queen City of the southwest and that in our judgment the results may be best attained by a Democratic administration. We favor municipal ownership of the utilities and in the event of success we pledge our aid to the construction and maintenance of an adequate system of streets, electric lights, sewerage and all other city improvements. We favor an economical business administration of city affairs. We hold in contempt the threat of the local Republicans that the National Republican administration will withhold appropriations of the funds placed in the treasury by citizens of all parties, for the upbuilding of Anadarko, and denounce such a course as beneath the honor of our political opponents.

Its declarations were cheered and unanimously adopted as the policy of the forty delegates.

It was moved and seconded that nominating speeches be confined to three minutes and that each candidate appear before the convention before being voted upon.

Order of business was then taken up and nominations declared in order for the office of mayor. At this juncture of proceedings Carl Glitch secured the recognition of the chair and offered a motion to the effect that it require a two-thirds vote of the delegates present to nominate. Instantly twenty delegates were on the floor clamoring for recognition. Matheny, Mitchell, Byrne, Shaw and a dozen others went on record in earnest, emphatic speeches as unalterably opposed to a measure that in their humble opinion was undemocratic. Speeches supporting the motion were made by Glitch, Shoenheit, Keer and Liming. The delegates called for the question, and upon a standing vote the motion was lost by 18 to 17. P. P. Shaw then placed in nomination W. H. Divers for mayor. Several seconding speeches were made, and no other names coming before the delegates, nominations were closed and Divers was declared the unanimous choice of the convention. In a short, but appropriate speech he thanked the delegates for the honor and pledged them his untiring efforts toward achieving victory for the ticket.

Theodore Pruitt was nominated for police judge and Frank Hedley for chief of police. Edward Bische, street scavenger; Bert Dixon, city treasurer; J. R. Lane, treasurer school board, and W. W. Price, city clerk. Two candidates were placed in nomination for city attorney, Verde V. Harcastle and J. M. Shoenheit.

Mr. Harcastle made an earnest appeal to the delegates, asking them to vote for the man who in their judgment would add the most strength to the ticket. Mr. Shoenheit, in an eloquent peroration, described the manner in which Moses led the Israelites out of Egypt and ended by asking the support of the convention for his candidacy. On ballot, Harcastle received 27 votes and Shoenheit 12.

Dole Hall was nominated for justice of the peace. For constables, F. Witt and J. W. Hearne were nominated.

The convention was an enthusiastic and harmonious one, and although some delegates lost their choice for nominees, they accepted the will of the majority as their choice, and after adjourning they all joined hands and pledged their support to the ticket as named.

Everything presaged success to the grand old Democratic party and on the night of the 24th the nominees named yesterday will become the first city officials of Anadarko, Queen City of the Southwest.

Following is a complete list of delegates and the various candidates for the council and school board.
